Understanding Piles (Hemorrhoids)

What are Piles?

Piles are swollen veins in the rectum and anus, often causing discomfort, itching, and bleeding.

Types of Piles

There are two main types: internal piles, which develop inside the rectum, and external piles, which develop under the skin around the anus.

Causes and Symptoms of Piles

1 Straining During Bowel Movements

This can put pressure on the veins in the rectum.

2 Prolonged Sitting or Standing

This can restrict blood flow and cause the veins to swell.

3 Pregnancy

Hormonal changes and pressure from the growing fetus can contribute to piles.

4 Obesity

Excess weight puts extra pressure on the veins in the rectum.

Conventional Treatments for Piles

Lifestyle Modifications	Dietary changes, increased fiber intake, and regular exercise.
Over-the-Counter Medications	Creams, suppositories, and stool softeners to relieve symptoms.
Surgical Procedures	In severe cases, surgery may be required to remove piles.
